The staff and employees Tientsin Municipal Hospital No 2 have formed current affairs and first-aid study classes to prepare for eventual service on the Korean front.

The personnel of Tientsin Workers' Hospital of the North China Rear Service Munitions Department, after having studied current affairs, were so stirred up with anti-US sentiment that they organized a Resist US, Aid Korea Medical Unit to serve in Korea. About 20 doctors, nurses, and workers have thus far volunteered to join the medical unit.

The Tientsin Nurses Training School has formed a combat first-aid class and a propaganda class to popularize the organization of first-aid teams in various schools and offices in Tientsin.

Sixty-eight doctors, nurses, and workers of the Tientsin Industrial Health Laboratory have been organized into a battle-zone medical service unit. The unit is now undergoing training to serve on the Korean front. Wang Hu-ts'ui (10) is the head of this medical unit.

Some 500 medical personnel from ten hospitals in Tientsin have volunteered for the Resist US, Aid Korea Volunteer Medical Unit. The personnel of the Tientsin Nurses Training School and Tientsin Workers' Hospital also formed first-aid and litter-bearing teams. The first group of the medical unit, consisting of 70-odd members will leave Tientsin soon to go to the Korean front.
